GRAHAM

Confesses the Brutal Killing of His Wife.

He Plunged a Knife into Her Neck, and Pitched Her Body into the Cava.

The Woman's Determination to Pursue and Expose Him Prompted the Bloody Crime.

GEO. E. GRAHAM

Confesses to the Murder of His Wife.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 1.—Cora Lee and Mrs. Malloy were arrested yesterday afternoon on warrants charging them with complicity in the murder of Mrs. Graham. As soon as arrested they broke down, bursting into tears and stating that now they believed in Graham's guilt. Graham was busily engaged in writing all afternoon and until late into the night. The document on which he was engaged proved to be a full and complete confession of the murder of his wife. He exonerates Mrs. Malloy and Cora Lee from all complicity in or knowledge of the crime. His first wife wrote him from Fort Wayne, saying she knew of his second marriage and was coming to Springfield. He wrote in reply denying it and trying to persuade her not to come. She started and he met her in St. Louis and again used every endeavor to have her leave him, but to no purpose, and she came on to Springfield with him and the children. At the depot here he again tried to induce her to go to Kansas City, but to no purpose. Finally they left the children at a restaurant and started for the farm, five miles distant, arriving there about 12:10 in the morning. At the farm gate Graham entreated his wife to not ruin him by going to the house, but she said she would go there and clean things out. He says he was whittling a stick with a pen knife and she had a small limb in her hands. Angry words passed and she struck at him with the limb. He threw up his hand to ward off the blow and the knife struck her in the neck. She screamed that he had killed her and he then caught hold of her and threw her violently from him. Stepping over her he saw blood spurting from her neck and says he knew then it was all over with him. So he shoved the knife into the wound to its full length and finished her. He then undressed the body and carried it to the well and threw it in and dropped the clothing in after it. He says no one but himself had any knowledge of the deed and speaks in endearing terms of Cora Lee, his second wife. It is thought Graham will be lynched.

GRAHAM IS COOL.

His imperturbable demeanor under the circumstances is extraordinary. Altogether he is a most remarkable phenomenon in the criminal line. He is well read in law, theology politics and general literature, a fluent and eloquent public speaker, a correct and vigorous writer and an expert penman. In his personal appearance he is decidedly unprepossessing, even repulsive; in fact, he wears the brand of the criminal indelibly stamped upon his lineaments. If he escapes lynching the prospects are that he will end his brief but chequered career upon the scaffold as soon as the machinery of justice can grind out a sentence to that effect.

Mrs. Malloy has engaged a couple of eminent lawyers and will fight the case, so far as she and Cora Lee are concerned, to the bitter end. There is no reaction in public opinion. All consider her and Cora guilty. Mrs. Breese, sister of the murdered woman, has arrived from Indiana. She was met at the depot by fully 1,000 people, and is an object of universal sympathy. Scores of ladies have called on her to offer their sympathy. Breese is a workingman and a move is on foot to raise funds to pay his expense in the matter.

HIS CAREER AT ELGIN.

ELGIN, Ill., March 1.—Geo. Graham and his murdered wife lived in this city for some time, and until about two years ago he was employed in the D. C. Cook Sunday school and temperance publishing house, and posed as an immaculate. Before he left here with Emma Molloy, there names were scandalously connected by gossips. They bought The Morning and Day of Reform, which was published here, and took it to Washington, Kansas, which place they also left under a moral cloud, going to Springfield, Mo.

CORA LEE,

Graham's Second Wife Is Not the Adopted Daughter of Emma Molloy.

LAFORTE, Ind., March 1.—Geo. E. Graham, who is now under arrest for bigamy, and charged with murdering his abandoned wife near Springfield, Mo., was a resident of this city for about a year immediately after his second term of imprisonment in the northern Indiana penitentiary. On his discharge he assumed the role of a reformer and temperance lecturer, and was adopted as a child of a society of cranks then existing here for the reclamation of convicts. At the head of this society was Mrs. Emma Molloy, who supplemented her duties as a reformer by lecturing on temperance and editing a Sunday school journal. Graham assisted in the editorial and other work about the office. While here he was arrested on a charge of stealing a horse, but escaped conviction, and began the prosecution against the sheriff for false imprisonment. The circumstances attending the arrest were all against Graham, and his general character was sufficient to shield the officer from responsibility.

Shortly after Mrs. Molloy secured a divorce from her husband she removed to Elgin, Ill., and as Graham disappeared about the same time, it was supposed he had gone there with her. Neither of the parties has been here since the removal, but their friends and acquaintances here have frequently heard from them through their evangelical and temperance work in the west. The Cora Lee mentioned in the dispatches formerly worked at the dress-making trade here, but left this city with Mrs. Molloy in the capacity of housekeeper, and was not her adopted daughter, as reported.

The jury in the case of F. G. McIntyre vs. Elijah Clore, on trial at Covington, returned a verdict for $2,000. This was a case for damages. Last fall, at the Montgomery county fair, Elijah Clore, a stock raiser from near Alamo, attended and drove a young stallion. The horse became unmanageable and jumped into and upset a spring wagon belonging to Mr. McIntyre, throwing out his wife and children. The injuries Mrs. McIntyre received caused her death. Mr. Clore will appeal the case.

The will of the late Silas C. Day, of New Albany, dated January 20, 1882, has been probated. It appoints his sons, James M. Day and William H. Day, executors, and if either declines to qualify, James B. Riley, his son-in-law, is to serve in place. The estimated value of the estate is $200,000. Among the bequests are a large amount of gas and bank stock, value unnamed, in trust for his niece, Emma C. Day; should she die without heirs, to revert to his seven children. He wills the residence and all pertaining to it to his wife and $40,000 in money or property, as she may elect. At her death $5,000 will revert to Handover college as a permanent fund, the interest to be used for the college expenses; $5,000 to the Presbyterian board of home missions; $5,000 to the trustees of the First Presbyterian church of New Albany, the sum to be permanently invested and the interest thereon to be used for the relief of the worthy poor of the church; $5,000 to three trustees, citizens of New Albany, to be invested, the interest thereupon to be applied by said trustees and their successors for the relief of such of the poor of the city as said trustees, or a majority of them, may, from time to time, deem proper objects of charity. Nothing, however, is to prevent his wife disposing of the estate bequeathed her by will or otherwise. The rest of his estate goes to his seven children, $27,000 to remain as a special deposit to secure a debt owed by his brother, and when it is paid this sum goes with the rest. His gold watch, highly valued as a gift, goes to his son, Silas A., and at his death to his grandson, Silas C. Day.

HARVESTING ICE.

An Industry of This Century—How the Crystal Cakes are Gathered.

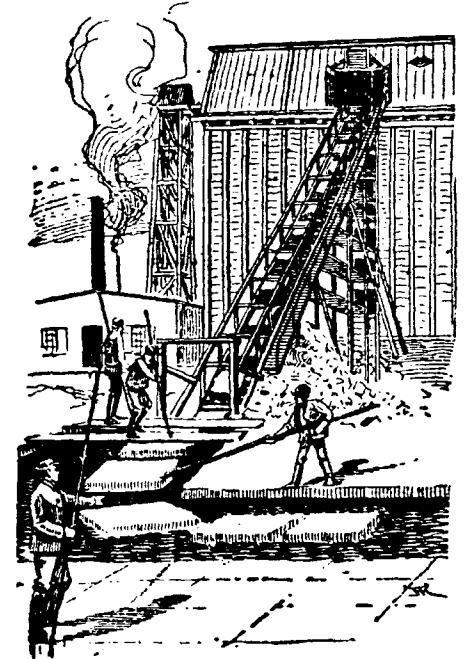

The gathering and storing of ice is a Yankee invention. It was Frederick Tudor who thought of it, and could he have known at the same time the amount of highway robbery in the shape of everlasting ice bills he was bringing on our modern civilization he likely would have buried the idea at once; or had he known the amount of this pressed material that is consumed annually over the bars of our land or in the deadly ice cream, his name would be associated with that of the inventor of whisky itself in the memories of our people. But the inventor believed he was devising a scheme that would be a boon to mankind, and taking all in all, maybe it has. His endeavor to develop his enterprise was met with obstacles of every kind of which the following is a brief summary: Beginning in the smallest and most modest manner in the winter of 1805 he gathered ice from Fresh Pond, a lake near Cambridge, Mass., improvising implements that would amuse a modern ice man to look upon. But ice cream had not yet been invented, the demand for the novel product was small, few became attracted by the new business, and Mr. Tudor continued to monopolize the ice trade for twenty-seven years. Then, in 1832, the grand ice total gathered amounted to 4,352 tons, which is now exceeded by some private ice houses. But, as will be seen, even this small stock proved an ample supply to satisfy both the local and foreign trade. Just about this time Mr. Tudor became impressed with the feasibility of shipping ice to tropical ports. He tried to find a vessel to carry his crystallized product, but ship owners demurred. They feared rapid melting on the way would endanger the vessel's safety, the protective properties of hay, sawdust, etc., being then imperfectly understood. Undaunted by this, however, he purchased an old brig, which he hastily refitted, loaded with ice, shipped on board himself and sailed for Havana. Without stopping to recount the details of a somewhat eventful voyage, except to note the heavy loss by melting, it must be observed that Tudor's safe arrival at Havana only brought him new tribulation for a time. He knew the people had never seen ice and knew nothing about it, and he expected to be obliged to teach them its uses. But he found they were afraid of it. Thus while the remnant of his perishable cargo was rapidly running away into the hold of his old brig, he labored ingeniously and incessantly to create a demand for it. He put pitchers of ice water on the hotel bars, paying for the privilege, but charging nothing for the cooling beverage. The natives tasted it cautiously and quickly spit it out at first, but at length finding it harmless they began to drink it freely. Then Mr. Tudor took away the free pitchers and opened a shop where he sold the ice, charging only a small sum at first. His first cargo was thus of little direct pecuniary profit but it made a foreign demand for ice, and subsequent cargoes brought handsome returns.

He afterward secured a large contract from the British government to furnish ice for the army at Calcutta, the paper bearing the royal signature of Queen Victoria. This he held for several years, making large sums of money thereby. The ice business was then developing slowly, and in 1847 about 75,000 tons were shipped from the port of Boston, nearly all having been gathered from the ponds and lakes in the vicinity of that city. Soon after that the business increased more rapidly; new uses and adaptations of ice became apparent, until to-day it is one of the permanent profitable industries.

MARKING AND PLOWING THE ICE FIELD.

The present method of ice harvesting is the same the country over, but as it takes place in the most severe of weather and in regions necessarily remote from populated localities, a brief description will be found interesting. In the first place, practical ice men select the ice field, and with a straight edge and square mark off two lines at right angles to each other, on two sides of the field. Then a "marker" drawn by a horse, as shown in the illustration, is run straight across the pond, one side having sharp cutting irons, the other simple guide bars that run in the grooves made by the cutters at the previous cut. These grooves are then intersected at right angles in the same way, 22x36 inches and about an inch deep. Then follows an ice plow, having a deeper blade with a series of chisel points. This sinks the groove to a depth of from three to five inches, depending upon the depth of ice. Then a gang of men with heavy chisel bars bar off rafts of these blocks in such shape as to admit their passage through a canal which has been previously cut from the house to the pond, and through which the ice is either towed by horses or pushed along by men with long pike poles to the hoisting aprons at the dock. During their progress the ice is again separated by men stationed at different bridges over the canal.

LIFTING THE ICE INTO ICE HOUSE.

At the end of the canal near the ice house rises an endless chain of buckets operated by steam power, on which the ice is floated, each bucket catching a cake and drawing it up. Thus the ice ascends this incline in a continuous stream, from whence it is run on galleries, and then is slid into the various rooms by its own gravity on descending "runs," where the blocks are stored by men versed in the work, it being necessary to leave spaces between for circulation of air and escape of water. These endless chain elevators were a great invention, and they entirely revolutionized the process of housing ice. Before their advent each block of ice had to be hoisted separately by horse power and it took most of the winter to fill the house, whereas now, twelve or fourteen working days will fill the largest house. When the house is full salt hay is spread thickly over the ice and all is tightly closed until wanted for use.

The house is truly immense ice boxes, capable of holding usually 100,000 tons of ice. The total storage capacity of these houses on the Hudson river alone is nearly 3,000,000 tons. The cost of gathering and storing ice is estimated at twenty cents per ton.

DINING at Holland House, one day, Macaulay quite wore out his hostess' patience by giving the most exact information on all sorts of interesting subjects, until Lady Holland asked him with derision and with a view to puzzling him: "Pray, Macaulay, what was the origin of a doll? When were dolls first mentioned in history?" As dolls were his favorite topic and natural to his chief study, Macaulay grappled with the question, quoted Latin writers, and, remarks Greville, "if he had been allowed to proceed, would have told the name of the first baby that ever handled a doll."

bitter cold night, to rescue two children who had been left by a madman to die in the snow. It is pleasant to tell that the citizens of Kansas City, appreciating her pluck, have given Miss Maude a handsome watch, suitably inscribed, a diamond ring of considerable value, and over $300 in money. As for the man, S. S. Baker, whose crazy freak gave occasion for Miss Long's heroism, he is in a private asylum in Philadelphia, and the doctors say that there is very little hope of his recovery.

THE most criticised and derided of the new English Ministers is Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer. When Sir William was a junior counsel on the Northern Circuit over twenty years ago, and held the position of steward, it appears that he failed to render a proper account of his stewardship. When questioned closely on the subject of his expenditures by one of his seniors it is reported that he replied: "The accounts be damned. The money is spent—the Lord only knows." It is suggested that this method, applied to the treasury, would vastly simplify the procedure in
that department.

A New York paper recently published a rumor to the effect that Gen.
Sherman was not satisfied with his home in St. Louis and the treatment accorded him there, and that he had decided to take up his permanent residence at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York. A St.
Louis Republican reporter called upon Gen. Sherman and showed him the item. After reading it carefully he smiled and said: "Well, it is true that I have been talking about moving to New York, but I shall not go before next winter." "For the reasons stated?"
"No, sir; on the contrary, I have been very much pleased with my residence here and have no fault to find. But my son, who is attending the St. Louis University, will graduate next summer, and he wants to go to Yale. His mother, naturally, will want to be near
him. Lieut. Fitch has already gone, you know, and my son's going to Yale would leave only two or three of us here. Besides, I find that it will be cheaper for us to board at the Fifth Avenue Hotel than to maintain this large house here. We have been talking over the matter among ourselves, and have concluded that it will be the best to make the change."
"When will you leave here?" "Not until next winter. I shall go to California next summer and bring up in New York next fall."

THE treatment New York brokers gave new members was, years ago, so rough that the Governing Committee interfered. Whoever ventured on the floor for the first time in those days was seized, his clothes pulled off and himself sent into the street in his under-clothes. When Nat. Jones went on he was accompanied by E. K. Willard, a very well-known broker. Jones had gotten far on the floor before the cry "New Tennessee! New Tennessee!" was raised. He was cloved in upon and his sleek plug knocked off. He says, telling of the experience, that seeing Willard, the man who had promised to stand by him, fleeing, he knocked in his hat because he wanted to make some sort of show. When little Brewster went on all the men on the floor gathered about him, and flapping their arms against their sides crowded as lustily as 500 voices could.
Then Brewster's hat went off, and when the crowd was through with him he looked not nearly so much like a ban-t as when he went in.

A WRITER in the hot climate of the East Indies calls attention to the possibility of serious mistake through accepting as correct the school-book statement that sound travels at the rate of 1,093 feet per second. That is its speed at the freezing point of water, or rather at the melting point of ice; but the rapidity of transmission appears to increase about one and three-quarters feet for each degree of temperature.
That makes a difference of seventy-five
and one-half feet at the temperature of 100 degrees which prevails in India. A shrapnel shell intended to be thrown 1,000 yards, the distance being estimated by sound, would fall seventy-five yards short of the mark aimed at
and do no damage. In the shelling of intrenchments at a distance of 4,000 yards the error would amount to about 250 yards, and the result might be to render useless a whole battery of guns.

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring—1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.
2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.
3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a great amount of good now than any other time. Take it now.

"His dark-colored cutaway, frock coat," writes a novelist, describing an American dandy, "fitted his handsome form without a wrinkle, almost as smoothly as a mole-skin on the back of its plump little owner. His large, glossy cuffs showed prominently below the sleeves of his coat. His cuff-buttons consisted of a single alligator's tooth of exquisite polish set in plain gold. They had been presented by a friend who spent his winters in Florida.
Roker's collar was immaculate. His flowered silk tie was a dainty product of high art in the furnishing goods line.
His boots exhibited the perfection of the polishing art. He carried a twisted cane, and was just lighting a choice Havana cigar."

New Jersey has a Baptist minister who claims to have baptized more people than any other man in his church.
The community in which he resides has been grieved over his stubborn cough that has interfered with his pastoral duties. A physician recommended Dr.
Bull's Cough Syrup, and consequently there will be baptism in his church next Sunday.

There is one thing nobody ever regrets —that is, the day they first adopted Parker's Tonic as their regular family medicine. Its range is so wide, and its good effects so sure, that nothing else, except good nursing, are needed in a great majority of cases. Buy it, try it, and afterwards it will not require any praise from us.

Sardon says he got no royalties from this country for "In Spite of All" or any of his plays but "Patrie," previous to 1880. For "Patrie" he received in royalties less than $600. That play was miserably butchered and presented in English, he states. M. Sardon has been amply repaid since 1880.

Minnie Madden and her good company gave "In Spite of All" to a very select assembly at the Temple Saturday. Miss Madden's voice scarcely filled the Temple, but she was very cute and almost too frivolous for parts of Sardon's play. The party went direct to Louisville from here and stay there three nights.

"Michael Strogoff" advertises with an air of abandon and this fact frightened the timid people of Peoria two weeks ago, when the show did a light business. The drama was such a success that the leading citizens made up a guarantee purse and had the company play a return date to the most select and fashionable assembly ever seen in that city.

Manager Wilkison, of the Academy, is an old newspaper man and has served on all the Toledo papers. C. B. Ruley, the retiring business manager, is going to travel with Sell's circus as purchasing agent.

Reilly's Comedy company which appears at the Academy to-night is the first specialty attraction played under the new management. The "Widder" is funny and will undoubtedly draw good houses.

The shipments of grain, flour and provisions, from Chicago, to eastern through stations by the pool lines during the week ending Saturday, February 27, amounted to 40,364 tons, against 48,146 tons during the preceding week, a decrease of 7,782 tons, and against 53,168 during the corresponding week of 1885 a decrease of 12,804 tons. The Pittsburg road was fourth in the list, carrying 4,231. The Nickel Plate carried 6,836 tons and was rated third.

Mike Connor, of the Seventh ward engine house, says: "I have been in the fire department for more than twenty years, and during that time I have attended many fires that have been credited as having originated from lamp explosions, and, while the records bear then out in the matter, I am certain not one of them was caused in that way. I have experimented some, and have never been able to explode a lamp. I know it is an error when they say a lamp exploded, as such a thing is an impossibility. A lamp may be fired by being overturned and the oil thus ignited, but a clear case of explosion is in impossibility."

"MICHAEL STROGOFF."

The Courier of the Czar Coming in Imperial Splendor.

The next attraction at the Temple is "Michael Strogoff," from Julius Verne's novel. Its date is Thursday night and as the show is advertised big the sale of advance seats, which begin to-morrow, will tell a tale. The motive of the play is in the earnest devotion to duty of Michael Strogoff, of the imperial messengers of the Czar, who, given a mission to Irkutsk, overcomes all obstacles to fulfill his pledge, "For God, the Czar, and My Country." Like the novel on which it is founded, it is thrilling from beginning to end. The great scenes of the drama include the battle field of Kolyvan and the city of Irkutsk in flames, while in scenic effects the play can be styled a melo-drama, but its cast of forty people includes artists of renown in all departments of the dramatic art. Two newspaper reporters make the fun. "Michael Strogoff" and "Maria Strogoff" are the emotional, strong characters, while Charlotte Brianza is the premier of the ballet, which, by the way, is not as "loud" nor as extensive as the choruses in any of the operas seen here.

THE REVIVALS.

How the Work of Christ Progresses in the City.

The religious awakening in the city continues with unabated interest. The various churches report no cessation in attendance, but on the contrary a deeper feeling seems to pervade the community. Yesterday, like every Sunday during the year, necessitated the double seating of the aisles at both morning and evening services in the Baptist church, while the after service in the lecture-room was crowded to the doors. Twelve persons were baptized in the morning. The Second Presbyterian church also received accessions yesterday to their zealous workers, while the Simpson M. E. and Grace Reformed congregations feel gratified at the work being done in their respective folds. Nor is this revival work confined to our own city. We cannot pick up a paper but what contains accounts of big meetings. Springfield, Illinois, is being stirred to its very depths. To-morrow a jubilee will be held by the united Methodist churches of that city, in commemoration of the conversion of one thousand souls, and the unprecedented harvest of the winter's spiritual campaign. Our exchanges note a similar awakening in all parts of the country. Yesterday the Railroad Young Men's Christian association held one of the largest and most interesting meetings of the year, the railroad men showing an interest never before known. The present week will no doubt witness glorious results, as the churches continue their work with unflagging zeal.

L. Beckman keeps a jewelry store at Kendallville and Saturday evening he locked his store to go to supper. In his absence a thief entered the place and stole all the watches, jewelry and other valuable trinkets he had in the store. The loss will reach fully $1,000. Mr. Beckman offers a reward for the arrest of the thief.

A Card.

Mr. and Mrs. George Miner desire to return their most grateful thanks to their many friends for the substantial evidence of their friendship and sympathy shown by their gifts at the donation for their benefit on Saturday evening, and also to the Ladies auxiliary of the R. R. Y. M. C. A. for suggesting and directing the party.

The Widder.

To-night Castine & Reilly's "Widder" specialty company will open at the Academy for a three days' engagement. The "Widder" is a three act comedy, very nearly the same as "Fun on the Bristol," and is full of late songs, new specialties, etc. The Indianapolis News says of it: "The entertainment was very good and pleased the audience immensely. The 'Widder' is chuck full of fun."

A few weeks ago Charles Hisey was caught in the very act of burglarizing a safe at Aurora, a confederate having put detectives on the fact that the safe was to be opened. As it was shown that the detectives and the alleged confederate had apparently led Hisey on to commit the burglary, the jury failed to agree upon a conviction.

Abraham Kahn, a cattle dealer of South Bend, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself through the head. He has been a sufferer for years from salt rheum, which nearly covered his body and made life a burden.

The case of Mattie Strausser against the city of Columbus, for $10,000 for a broken leg sustained by falling on a slippery and defective pavement, was sent to Decatur county on a change of venue. The case has been tried twice, the jury disagreeing both times.

No matter how severe the pain, St. Jacobs Oil will instantly remove it.

ROBBED A HOTEL.

Ellsworth Clemens, a Journeyman Machinist, Held for Larceny at the Harmon House.

Ellsworth Clemens, a stranger here, got into the Harmon house yesterday afternoon and proceeded to inspect the apartments of the boarders. He stole a meerschaum pipe from Charley Marsh, a pocket book from Fred Irwin and cigars from Sam Hinman. The loss was discovered and Deputy Marshal Lime-cooley arrested Clemens with the property on his person. The young man was locked up and this morning he asked that his trial be postponed until Thursday. The request was granted. Clemens is a tall, queer looking chap. He says he is a rover. He was sent from Philadelphia to South America once and, returning to New Orleans, he squandered his earnings, $900, in a big spree. His brother-in-law is Jacob Johann, formerly master mechanic on the Wabash, but now holding that place on the Chicago and Atlantic road.

OPERATIONS have been lately begun for the purpose of clearing away the mass of sand which has accumulated during centuries around the famous statue of the Sphinx. Brughsh Bey, brother of the distinguished Egyptologist, has charge of the work, which is being carried out according to a plan proposed by Signor Maspero, and will, it is expected, be finished by Easter. The portion of the statue at present above ground is about forty feet. It is supposed that as much more, at least, is buried in the sand, and the amount of sand to be cleared away is estimated at 20,000 cubic meters. A small tramway is being constructed to carry away this mass of sand to a distance, and 150 laborers are employed on the task. When the statue has been laid bare to the level of the foundations a broad circular walk will be constructed around it, and a high wall will be built to guard against future encroachments of the sands of the desert.

MINER TYLER, of Prairie du Chien, Wis., swallowed a tablespoonful of laudanum on a wager of $10. When his friends arrived with a doctor to "pump him out" they found him sawing wood. On urging him to submit to the pumping process, he replied: "I am doing that myself," and sawed away for three hours, in the meantime perspiring freely. He then went home, slept four hours, got up, and went about his work the next day feeling just as well as ever.

For Sale.

I offer for sale the "Home" bar fixtures, consisting of ice box, two side boards and washboard, bar with hand and foot rails and five mirrors. The above originally cost $1,200, but, to make room for new furniture, will be sold at a sacrifice. Can be seen at any time at the "Home."

GRAHAM

Confesses the Brutal Killing of His Wife.

He Plunged a Knife into Her Neck, and Pitched Her Body into the Cave.

The Woman's Determination to Pursue and Expose Him Prompted the Bloody Crime.

GEO. E. GRAHAM

Confesses to the Murder of His Wife.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 1.—Cora Lee and Mrs. Malloy were arrested yesterday afternoon on warrants charging them with complicity in the murder of Mrs. Graham. As soon as arrested they broke down, bursting into tears and stating that now they believed in Graham's guilt. Graham was brutally engaged in writing all afternoon and until late into the night. The document on which he was engaged proved to be a full and complete confession of the murder of his wife. He exonerates Mrs. Malloy and Cora Lee from all complicity in or knowledge of the crime. His first wife wrote him from Fort Wayne, saying she knew of his second marriage and was coming to Springfield. He wrote in reply denying it and trying to persuade her not to come. She started and he met her in St. Louis and again used every endeavor to have her leave him, but to no purpose, and she came on to Springfield with him and the children. At the depot here he again tried to induce her to go to Kansas City, but to no purpose. Finally they left the children at a restaurant and started for the farm, five miles distant, arriving there about 12:10 in the morning. At the farm gate Graham entreated his wife to not ruin him by going to the house, but she said she would go there and clean things out. He says he was whittling a stick with a pen knife and she had a small limb in her hands. Angry words passed and she struck at him with the limb. He threw up his hand to ward off the blow and the knife struck her in the neck. She screamed that he had killed her and he then caught hold of her and threw her violently from him. Stepping over her he saw blood spurting from her neck and says he knew then it was all over with him. So he shoved the knife into the wound to its full length and finished her. He then undressed the body and carried it to the well and threw it in and dropped the clothing in after it. He says no one but himself had any knowledge of the deed and speaks in endearing terms of Cora Lee, his second wife. It is thought Graham will be lynched.

GRAHAM IS OODLE.

His imperturbable demeanor under the circumstances is extraordinary. Altogether he is a most remarkable phenomenon in the criminal line. He is well read in law, theology politics and general literature, a fluent and eloquent public speaker, a correct and vigorous writer and an expert penman. In his personal appearance he is decidedly unprepossessing, even repulsive; in fact, he wears the brand of the criminal indelibly stamped upon his countenance. If he escapes lynching the prospects are that he will end his brief but chequered career upon the scaffold as soon as the machinery of justice can grind out a sentence to that effect.

Mrs. Malloy has engaged a couple of eminent lawyers and will fight the case, so far as she and Cora Lee are concerned, to the bitter end. There is no reaction in public opinion. All consider her and Cora guilty. Mrs. Breese, sister of the murdered woman, has arrived from Indiana. She was met at the depot by fully 1,000 people, and is an object of universal sympathy. Scores of ladies have called on her to offer their sympathy. Breese is a workwoman and a move is on foot to raise funds to pay his expense in the matter.

HIS CAREER AT ELOIN.

ELOIN, Ill., March 1.—Geo. Graham and his murdered wife lived in this city for some time, and until about two years ago he was employed in the D. C. Cook Sunday school and temperance publishing house, and posed as an immaculate. Before he left here with Emma Molloy, there names were scandalously connected by gossip. They bought The Morning and Day of Reform, which was published here, and took it to Washington, Kansas, which place they also left under a moral cloud, going to Springfield, Mo.

CORA LEE.

Graham's Second Wife Is Not the Adopted Daughter of Emma Molloy.

LAFORTE, Ind., March 1.—Geo. E. Graham, who is now under arrest for bigamy, and charged with murdering his abandoned wife near Springfield, Mo., was a resident of this city for about a year immediately after his second term of imprisonment in the northern Indiana penitentiary. On his discharge he assumed the role of a reformer and temperance lecturer, and was adopted as a child of a society of cranks then existing here for the reclamation of convicts. At the head of this society was Mrs. Emma Molloy, who supplemented her duties as a reformer by lecturing on temperance and editing a Sunday school journal. Graham assisted in the editorial and other work about the office. While here he was arrested on a charge of stealing a horse, but escaped conviction, and began the prosecution against the sheriff for false imprisonment. The circumstances attending the arrest were all against Graham, and his general character was sufficient to shield the officer from responsibility.

Shortly after Mrs. Molloy secured a divorce from her husband she removed to Elgin, Ill., and as Graham disappeared about the same time, it was supposed he had gone there with her. Neither of the parties has been here since the removal, but their friends and acquaintances here have frequently heard from them through their evangelical and temperance work in the west. The Cora Lee mentioned in the dispatches formerly worked at the dress-making trade here, but left this city with Mrs. Molloy in the capacity of housekeeper, and was not her adopted daughter, as reported.

Wm. Smith, who lives in New Washington, Clark county, a few days ago invited William and Lynn Gara to spend the night with him. The jury in the case of F. G. McIntyre vs. Elijah Clore, on trial at Covington, returned a verdict for $3,000. This was a case for damages. Last fall, at the Montgomery county fair, Elijah Clore, a stock raiser from near Alamo, attended and drove a young stallion. The horse became unmanageable and jumped into and upset a spring wagon belonging to Mr. McIntyre, throwing out his wife and children. The injuries Mrs. McIntyre received caused her death. Mr. Clore will appeal the case.

The will of the late Silas C. Day, of New Albany, dated January 20, 1883, has been probated. It appoints his sons, James M. Day and William H. Day, executors, and if either declines to qualify, James B. Riley, his son-in-law, is to serve in place. The estimated value of the estate is $200,000. Among the bequests are a large amount of gas and bank stock, value unnamed, in trust for his niece, Emma C. Day; should she die without heirs, to revert to his seven children. He wills the residence and all pertaining to it to his wife and $40,000 in money or property, as she may elect. At her death $5,000 will revert to Hanover college as a permanent fund, the interest to be used for the college expenses; $5,000 to the Presbyterian board of home missions; $5,000 to the trustees of the First Presbyterian church of New Albany, the sum to be permanently invested and the interest thereon to be used for the relief of the worthy poor of the church; $5,000 to three trustees, citizens of New Albany, to be invested, the interest thereon to be applied by said trustees and their successors for the relief of such of the poor of the city as said trustees, or a majority of them, may, from time to time, deem proper objects of charity. Nothing, however, is to prevent his wife disposing of the estate bequeathed her by will or otherwise. The rest of his estate goes to his seven children, $27,000 to remain as a special deposit to secure a debt owed by his brother, and when it is paid this sum goes with the rest. His gold watch, highly valued as a gift, goes to his son, Silas A., and at his death to his grandson, Silas C. Day.

There were 2,425 pounds of powder in the house when the explosion occurred. It was caused by the explosion of a boiler used in drying the powder. The victims were: Henry Franklin, who leaves a wife and four children; Christy McCann, who leaves a wife and one child, and Michael Haney, who leaves a wife and three children in Ireland. The loss is heavy but cannot now be estimated.

HARVESTING ICE.

The gathering and storing of ice is a Yankee invention. It was Frederick Tudor who thought of it, and could have known at the same time the amount of highway robbery in the shape of overhauling ice bills he was bringing on our modern civilization. He likely would have buried the idea at once; or had he known the amount of this pressed material that is consumed annually over the bars of our land or in the daily ice cream, his name would be associated with that of the inventor of whiskey itself in the memories of our people. But the inventor believed he was devising a scheme that would be a boon to mankind, and taking it to him, maybe it has. His endeavor to develop his enterprise was met with obstacles of every kind, of which the following is a brief summary: Beginning in the market and most modest manner in the winter of 1805 he gathered ice from Fresh Pond, a little near Cambridge, Mass., improvising implements that would amuse a modern ice-man to look upon. But ice cream had not yet been invented, the demand for the novel product was small, few because attracted by the new business, and Mr. Tudor continued to monopolize the ice trade for twenty-seven years. Then, in 1832, the grand ice total gathered amounted to 4,352 tons, which is now exceeded by some private ice houses. But, as will be seen, even this small stock proved an ample supply to satisfy both the local and foreign trade. Just about this time Mr. Tudor became impressed with the feasibility of shipping ice to tropical ports. He tried to find a vessel to carry his crystallized product, but ship owners demurred. They feared rapid melting on the way would endanger the vessel's safety, the protective properties of hay, sawdust, etc., being then imperfectly understood. Undaunted by this, however, he purchased an old brig, which he hastily refitted, loaded with ice, stepped on board himself and sailed for Havana. Without stopping to recount the details of a somewhat eventful voyage, except to note the heavy loss by melting, it must be observed that Tudor's safe arrival at Havana only brought him new tribulation for a time. He knew the people had never seen ice and knew nothing about it, and he expected to be obliged to teach them its uses. But he found they were afraid of it. Thus while the remnants of his perishable cargo was rapidly running away into the hold of his old brig, he labored ingeniously and incessantly to create a demand for it. He put pitchers of ice water on the hotel bars, paying for the privilege, but charging nothing for the cooling beverage. The natives tasted it cautiously and quickly spit it out at first, but at length finding it harmless they began to drink it freely. Then Mr. Tudor took away the free pitchers and opened a shop where he sold the ice, charging only a small sum at first. His first cargo was thus of little direct pecuniary profit, but it made a foreign demand for ice, and subsequent cargoes brought handsome returns.

He afterward secured a large contract from the British government to furnish ice for the army at Calcutta, the paper bearing the royal signature of Queen Victoria. This he held for several years, making large sums of money thereby. The ice business was then developing slowly, and in 1847 about 75,000 tons were shipped from the port of Boston, nearly all having been gathered from the ponds and lakes in the vicinity of that city. Soon after that the business increased more rapidly; new uses and adaptations of ice became apparent, until to-day it is one of the permanent profitable industries.

The present method of ice harvesting is the same the country over, but as it takes place in the most severe of weather and in regions necessarily remote from populated localities, a brief description will be found interesting. In the first place, practical ice men select the ice field, and with a straight edge and square mark off two lines at perfect right angles to each other, on two sides of the field. Then a "marker" drawn by a horse, as shown in the illustration, is run straight across the pond, one side having sharp cutting irons, the other simple guide bars that run in the grooves made by the cutters at the previous cut. These grooves are then intersected at right angles in the same way, 2x36 inches and about an inch deep. Then follows an ice plow, having a deeper blade with a series of chisel points. This sinks the groove to a depth of from three to five inches, depending upon the depth of ice. Then a gang of men with heavy chisel bars bar off rafts of these blocks in such shape as to admit their passage through a canal which has been previously cut from the house to the pond, and through which the ice is either towed by horses or pushed along by men with long pole poles to the boiling aprons at the dock. During their progress the cakes are again separated by men stationed at different bridges over the canal.

LIFTING THE ICE INTO ICE HOUSE.

At the end of the canal near the ice house rises an endless chain of buckets operated by steam power, on which the ice is floated, each bucket catching a cake and drawing it up. Thus the ice ascends this incline in a continuous stream, from whence it is run on galleries, and then is slid into the various rooms by its own gravity on descending "runs," where the blocks are stowed by men versed in the work, it being necessary to leave spaces between for circulation of air and escape of water. These endless chain elevators were a great invention, and they entirely revolutionized the process of hoisting ice. Before their advent each block of ice had to be hoisted separately by horse power and it took most of the winter to fill the house, whereas now, twelve or fourteen working days will fill the largest house. When the house is full salt hay is spread thickly over the ice and all is tightly closed until wanted for use.

The houses are truly immense ice boxes, capable of holding usually 100,000 tons of ice. The total storage capacity of these houses on the Hudson River alone is nearly 3,000,000 tons. The cost of gathering and hoisting ice is estimated at twenty cents per ton.

SOME time ago a little 8-year-old, playing in the yard, came into the house where the little fellow pointed to a snake which was gliding away through the grass.

THE late Mrs. Elizabeth Hudson, of articles of "bigotry and virtue," and

THE complete adjustment of the late Francis A. Drexel's estate has just been finished. It shows that the Philadelphia banker left a fortune of $15,000,- 000, $5,000,000 more than was commonly supposed. Roman Catholic charities, under the testator's will, receive $1,500,000, enough to put them firmly on their feet.

were working in the gravel pit of Bidunmanned to escape except Rowley, who, as he was caught by the falling gravel, threw his shovel as far as he could.

This saved his life, for every other shovel was buried by the slide; but working with Rowley's shovel and their hands the men dug him out, not much hurt, but very badly scared.

RICHARD GREENE is a grandson of the Revolutionary General Nathaniel Greene, and was a private soldier in the Union army. He has been reported a deserter from two regiments, to of which he never belonged; the charge in the other he was relieved of at the time. He is now an applicant for a pension, and finds the untrue record against him. It will require an act of Congress to remove the stigma.

DINING at Rolland House, one day, Macaulay quite wore out his hostess'
patience by giving the most exact information on all sorts of interesting
subjects, until Lady Holland asked
him with derision and with a view to
puzzling him: "Pray, Macaulay, what was the origin of a doll? When were dolls first mentioned in history?" As dolls were his favorite topic and now his chief study, Macaulay grappled with the question, quoted Latin writers, and remarks Græville, "if he had been allowed to proceed, would
have told the name of the first baby
that ever handled a doll."

A SHORT time ago was printed an account of the heroism shown by Maude Long, of Independence, Missouri, who walked three miles after midnight, on a bitter cold night, to rescue two children who had been left by a madman to die in the snow. It is pleasant to tell
that the citizens of Kansas City, appreciating her pluck, have given Miss Maude a handsome watch, suitably inscribed, a diamond ring of considerable value, and over $300 in money. As for the man, S. S. Baker, whose crazy freak gave occasion for Miss Long's heroism, he is in a private asylum in Philadelphia, and the doctors say that there is very little hope of his recovery.

THE most criticized and derided of the new English Ministers is Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Chancellor of
the Exchequer. When Sir William
was a junior counsel on the Northern Circuit over twenty years ago, and held
the position of steward, it appears that he failed to render a proper account of his stewardship. When questioned closely on the subject of his expenditures by one of his seniors it is reported that he replied: "The accounts be damned. The money is spent—the Lord only knows." It is suggested that this method, applied to the treasury,
would vastly simplify the procedure in
that department.

A NEW YORK paper recently published a rumor to the effect that Gen.
Sherman was not satisfied with his home in St. Louis and the treatment accorded him there, and that he had decided to take up his permanent residence at the
Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York. A St.
Louis Republican reporter called upon Gen. Sherman and showed him the item. After reading it carefully he smiled and said: "Well, it is true that I have been talking about moving to
New York, but I shall not go before
next winter." "For the reasons stated?"
"No, sir; on the contrary, I have been
very much pleased with my residence
here and have no fault to find. But my son, who is attending the St. Louis University, will graduate next summer,
and he wants to go to Yale. His mother, naturally, will want to be near
him. Lieut. Fitch has already gone,
you know, and my son's going to Yale
would leave only two or three of us here. Besides, I find that it will be cheaper for us to board at the Fifth Avenue Hotel than to maintain this large house here. We have been talking over the matter among ourselves, and have concluded that it will be the best to make the change." "When will you leave here?" "Not until next winter. I shall go to California next summer and bring up in New York next fall."

THE treatment New York brokers
gave new members was, years ago, so
rough that the Governing Committee interfered. Whoever ventured on the floor for the first time in those days
was seized, his clothes pulled off and
himself sent into the street in his underclothes. When Nat Jones went on
he was accompanied by E. K. Willard, a well-known broker. Jones had not gotten far on the floor before the cry "New Tennessee! New Tennessee!" was raised. He was closed in upon and his sleek plug knocked off. He says, telling of the experience, that seeing Willard, the man who had promised to stand by him, fleeing, he
knocked in his hat because he wanted to make some sort of show. When little Brewster went on all the men on the floor gathered about him, and flap-
ping their arms against their sides crowd as lustily as 500 voices could.
Then Brewster's hat went off, and when
the crowd was through with him he looked not nearly so much like a ban-t in as when he went in.

A WRITER in the hot climate of the East Indies calls attention to the possibility of serious mistake through accepting as correct the school-book statement that sound travels at the rate of 1,093 feet per second. That is its speed
at the freezing point of water, or rather
at the melting point of ice; but the rapidity of transmission appears to increase about one and three-quarters
feet for each degree of temperature.
That makes a difference of seventy-five
and one-half feet at the temperature of 100 degrees which prevails in India. A shrapnel shell intended to be thrown 1,000 yards, the distance being estimated by sound, would fall seventy-
five yards short of the mark aimed at
and do no damage. In the shelling of intrenchments at a distance of 4,000
yards the error would amount to about 250 yards, and the result might be to render useless a whole battery of guns.

The Popular French Brewery, Of which Mr. C. L. Coultre is the onterprising and highly successful proprietor, is at the north end of Spy Run avenue, and is the largest and finest establishment of the kind in this part of the country. It manufactures the celebrated brands of lager beer known as the "Kaiser," "Kulmbacher" and "Bohemian," which is made from the imported hops and Canada malt. These brands of beer are the most popular in the city and state, and are sold more extensively than any other kind made, as they are pronounced by physicians to be the best tonic to be had for invalids and people with enfeebled digestion.

Many of the best families in the city and state also purchase by the case and keep constantly on hand Mr. Coultre's export bottle beer, which is put up in the finest shape known to the craft, as is also his noted Bohemian beer, which will keep in any climate and warranted to give the highest satisfaction, as he uses only the steam process in bottling. He buys only the finest materials, employs the best skill that can be had, is one of the most thoroughly experienced brewers in the country, and a gentleman who is not only an honor to the trade, but to deal with also in every sense of the word.

Sardou says he got no royalties from this country for "In Spite of All" or any of his plays but "Patrie," previous to 1880. For "Patrie" he received in royalties less than $500. That play was miserably butchered and presented in English, he states. M. Sardou has been amply repaid since 1880.

Minnie Madden and her good company gave "In Spite of All" to a very select assembly at the Temple Saturday. Miss Madden's voice scarcely filled the Temple, but she was very cute and almost too frivolous for parts of Sardou's play. The party went direct to Louisville from here and stay there three nights.

"Michael Strogoff" advertised with an air of abandon and this fact frightened the timid people of Peoria two weeks ago, when the show did a light business. The drama was such a success that the leading citizens made up a guarantee purse and had the company play a return date to the most select and fashionable assembly ever seen in that city.

Mike Connors, of the Seventh ward engine house, says: "I have been in the fire department for more than twenty years, and during that time I have attended many fires that have been credited as having originated from lamp explosions, and while the records bear then out in the matter, I am certain not one of them was caused in that way. I have experimented some, and have never been able to explode a lamp. I know it is an error when they say a lamp exploded, as such a thing is an impossibility. A lamp may be fired by being overturned and the oil thus ignited, but a clear case of explosion is impossible."

"MICHAEL STROGOFF."

The Courier of the Czar Coming in Imperial Splendor.

The next attraction at the Temple is "Michael Strogoff," from Julius Verne's novel. Its date is Thursday night and as the show is advertised big the sale of advance seats, which begin to-morrow, will tell a tale. The motive of the play is in the earnest devotion to duty of Michael Strogoff, of the imperial messengers of the Czar, who, given a mission to Irkutsk, overcomes all obstacles to fulfill his pledge, "For God, the Czar, and My Country." Like the novel on which it is founded, it is thrilling from beginning to end. The great scenes of the drama include the battle field of Kolyvan and the city of Irkutsk in flames, while in scenic effects the play can be styled a solo-drama, but its cast of forty people includes artists of renown in all departments of the dramatic art. Two newspaper reporters make the fun. "Michael Strogoff" and "Maria Strogoff" are the emotional, strong characters, while Charlotte Brinza is the premier of the ballet, which, by the way, is not as "loud" nor as extensive as the choruses in any of the operas seen here.

THE REVIVALS.

How the Work of Christ Progresses in the City.

The religious awakening in the city continues with unabated interest. The various churches report no cessation in attendance, but on the contrary a deeper feeling seems to pervade the community. Yesterday, like every Sunday during the year, necessitated the double seating of the siales at both morning and evening services in the Baptist church, while the after service in the lecture-room was crowded to the doors. Twelve persons were baptized in the morning. The Second Presbyterian church also received accessions yesterday to their zealous workers, while the Simpson M. E. and Grace Reformed congregations feel gratified at the work being done in their respective folds. Nor is this revival work confined to our own city. We cannot pick up a paper but what contains accounts of big meetings. Springfield, Illinois, is being stirred to its very depths. To-morrow a jubilee will be held by the united Methodist churches of that city, in commemoration of the conversion of one thousand souls, as the unprecedented harvest of the winter's spiritual campaign. Our exchanges note a similar awakening in all parts of the country. Yesterday the Railroad Young Men's Christian association held one of the largest and most interesting meetings of the year, the railroad men showing an interest never before known. The present week will no doubt witness glorious results, as the churches continue their work with unflagging zeal.

L. Beckman keeps a jewelry store at Kendallville and Saturday evening he locked his store to go to supper. In his absence a thief entered the place and stole all the watches, jewelry and other valuable trinkets he had in the store. The loss will reach fully $1,000. Mr. Beckman offers a reward for the arrest of the thief.

Mr. and Mrs. George Miner desire to return their most grateful thanks to their many friends for the substantial evidence of their friendship and sympathy shown by their gifts at the donation for their benefit on Saturday evening, and also to the Ladies auxiliary of the R. R. Y. M. C. A. for suggesting and directing the party.

The Widder.

To-night Castine & Reilly's "Widder" specialty company will open at the Academy for a three days' engagement. The "Widder" is a three act comedy, very nearly the same as "Fun on the Bristol," and is full of late songs, new specialties, etc. The Indianapolis News says of it: "The entertainment was very good and pleased the audience immensely. The 'Widder' is chuck full of fun."

A few weeks ago Charles Hisey was caught in the very act of burglarizing a safe at Aurora, a confederate having put detectives on the fact that the safe was to be opened. As it was shown that the detectives and the alleged confederate had apparently led Hisey on to commit the burglary, the jury failed to agree upon a conviction.

Abraham Kahn, a cattle dealer of South Bond, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself through the head. He has been a sufferer for years from an ailment, which nearly covered his body and made life a burden.

The case of Mattie Strummer against the city of Columbus, for $10,000 for a broken leg sustained by falling on a slippery and defective pavement, was sent to Decatur county on a change of venue. The case has been tried twice, the jury disagreeing both times.

No matter how severe the pain, St. Jacobs Oil will instantly remove it.

ROBBED A HOTEL.

Ellsworth Clemens, a stranger here, got into the Harmon house yesterday afternoon and proceeded to inspect the apartments of the boarders. He stole a meerschaum pipe from Charley Marsh, a pocket book from Fred Irwin and cigars from Sam Htman. The loss was discovered and Deputy Marshal Lime-cooley arrested Clemens with the property on his person. The young man was looked up and this morning he asked that his trial be postponed until Thursday. The request was granted. Clemens is a tall, queer looking chap. He says he is a rover. He was sent from Philadelphia to South America once, and returning to New Orleans, he squandered his earnings, $900, in a big spree. His brother-in-law is Jacob Johann, formerly master mechanic on the Wabash, but now holding that place on the Chicago and Atlantic road.

OPERATIONS have been lately begun for the purpose of clearing away the mass of sand which has accumulated during centuries around the famous statue of the Sphinx. Brugsch Bey, brother of the distinguished Egyptologist, has charge of the work, which is being carried out according to a plan proposed by Signor Maspero, and will, it is expected, be finished by Easter. The portion of the statue at present above ground is about forty feet. It is supposed that as much more, at least, is buried in the sand, and the amount of sand to be cleared away is estimated at 20,000 cubic meters. A small tramway is being constructed to carry away this mass of sand to a distance, and 150 laborers are employed on the task. When the statue has been laid bare to the level of the foundations a broad circular walk will be constructed around it, and a high wall will be built to guard against future encroachments of the sands of the desert.

MINER TYLER, of Prairie du Chien, Wis., swallowed a tablespoonful of laudanum on a wager of $10. When his friends arrived with a doctor to "pump him out" they found him sawing wood. On urging him to submit to the pumping process, he replied: "I am doing that myself," and sawed away for three hours, in the meantime perspiring freely. He then went home, slept four hours, got up, and went about his work the next day feeling just as well as ever.

For Sale.

I offer for sale the "Home" bar fixtures, consisting of ice box, two side boards and washboard, bar with hand and foot rails and five mirrors. The above originally cost $1,200, but, to make room for new furniture, will be sold at a sacrifice. Can be seen at any time at the "Home."

J. H. MCGAIN.
